The item Life on the color line : the true story of a white boy who discovered he was black, Gregory Howard Williams represents a specific, individual, material embodiment of a distinct intellectual or artistic creation found in Indiana State Library.

Life on the color line may give people a better idea of why someone would try to pass for white, denying their family entirely, and sometimes with their family's blessing. While even today, life is quite difficult for minorities, particularly the non-white, dark ones - predominantly folk with African ancestry - it's nothing compared to what it used to be.

Williams published autobiography, Life on the Color Line: The True Story of a White Boy Who Discovered He Was Black - was awarded the 1995 Los Angeles Times Book of the Year.
