The main activities are organizing and training a national team of mentors (including senior midwives, obstetricians, and pediatricians) in clinical mentoring, deploying them to mentor all health providers (mentees) performing maternal and newborn health (MNH) services, and providing in-service training in routine and Emergency Obstetrical and Newborn Care (EmONC) to the mentees in health facilities over an 18-month period.

Clinical days and hours vary from 8-12 hours a day as determined by clinical availability. The nursing faculty believes that students must be present in order to learn; therefore, punctual daily attendance is an expectation for all clinical rotations. Clinical absences may constitute failing the During the fall 2019 semester, Leon supervised 40 UTEP students participating in the maternal/newborn care clinical rotation experience at UMC. This clinical experience provides students an opportunity to apply theoretical concepts and implement safe patient care to mothers and newborns at the hospital.

Undergraduate, senior nursing students (80) in the maternal-child course: 39 in an obstetric hospital rotation and 41 in a pediatric clinical rotation voluntarily participated and comprised the two comparison groups.
