Swara yoga is a form of yoga that helps you achieve a level of cosmic consciousness by manipulating and controlling your breath. While yoga means 'union', Swara in Sanskrit can be translated to English to mean sound or musical note. The term Swara also relates to the constant flow of air in and out of your nostrils.

Swara Yoga—Swara the science of one's own breath.

Swara Yoga is the study of breathing in association with the seasons, hour of time, the positions of the planets, moon, and sun, as well as the yogi's state of mind and being. Swara Yogi believe that upon entering a new day, one should be aware of the phase the moon is in and which nostril is breathing stronger so that one can step out of bed with the foot on the same side of the body as the dominant nostril.
